At their meeting June 10, 2013, the Town Council voted to establish the Cape Elizabeth 250th Anniversary Committee, with a charge "to provide leadership in celebrating the 250th anniversary of the incorporation of Cape Elizabeth." The charge is written broadly to provide independence to the committee in their review and in their deliberations.

At their meeting Dec. 9, 2013, town councilors appointed Catherine Adams, Jane Beckwith, Carole Anne Jordan, Norman Jordan, Stephanie Korrup, Darren McLellan and Barbara Powers to the ad hoc 250th Anniversary Committee. All terms are for two years, to expire Dec. 31, 2015. The Cape Elizabeth Historical Preservation Society suggested the Town appoint an ad hoc committee, as well as other ideas for marking the town's 250th anniversary.

Cape Elizabeth was incorporated by the General Court of Massachusetts on Nov. 1, 1765, establishing the town as a community separate from Falmouth, the name of the region that includes what is now Portland, South Portland, Falmouth, part of Westbrook and Cape Elizabeth. In 1895, the City of South Portland was incorporated and the remaining section of what was Cape Elizabeth from 1765 to 1895 retained the name "Cape Elizabeth." The year 2015, however, is the 250th anniversary of Cape's first incorporation.

The historic preservation society envisions using existing events and organizations to celebrate the anniversary. Ideas include tours of historic landmarks, a band concert at the gazebo at Fort Williams Park, and a possible "Harvest Ball" at the Town Hall.
